The huge liner Queen Mary, British, of course, more than 1000 feet long, finished her first transatlantic trip somewhat behind the record of her French rival, the Normandie. The captain of Queen Mary says fog delayed her. She expects to beat the Normandie. The Normandie naturally expects the contrary.

Uncle Sam looks on and wonders how other nations manage to build such magnificent steamers and how Germany can build dirigibles that keep on flying. "Wondering" is Uncle Sam's occupation just now.

Queen Mary has one feature that may raise the noble ire of extreme radicals. On the sports deck a dog hotel, with 26 rooms, has hot and cold water in each room, trained attendants to walk the dogs, brush them and feed them according to dietary principles.

It should comfort the radical to remember that with all this luxury, the dogs are still dogs. Just as the man who thinks he can change the world, overnight, is, after all his talking, still a goose.

England is delighted to learn that there is no truth in the story of sudden close Japanese-Japanese friendship.

Japan would like to cut a canal for her commercial ships and warships through the Siamese Isthmus of Kra.

Such a canal would enable Japanese ships to go back and forth 700 miles above Singapore and make the great British war base a joke, as far as Japan is concerned.

A proposition more interesting to the United States may be heard from later. It has to do with a ship canal through Mexico, at its narrowest point between the Gulf and the Pacific, the canal opening on the west into the Gulf of Tehuantepec, Mexican and United States engineers declare the plan feasible, with unusually high locks. Such a canal would cut out thousands of miles of the distance between New York and our Pacific coast ports. Two thousand miles on the round trip to the West Coast would be worth saving.

The former manager of the late Hury Long was in New York yesterday planning a meeting of the Rev. G. K. Smith, successor to Senator Long as head of the "Share-the-Wealth" movement; Dr. Townsend, father of the $200-million-old-age-pension-plan, and the Rev. Father Coughlin, of Detroit. It was announced that Dr. Townsend and the Rev. Mr. Smith would unite "to get rid of Roosevelt." As this was written yesterday afternoon, Father Coughlin had not made any definite statement.

The United States Supreme Court yesterday declared unconstitutional a New York state law that would permit New York to fix a minimum wage for women and children.

Chief Justice Hughes, who did not agree with the majority opinion, wrote:

"I find nothing in the federal Constitution which denies to the state the power to protect women from being exploited by over-reaching employers."

There is an old saying that "the best way to discourage vice is to make it expensive," and it is pleasing to learn that, in this country, the price of morphine, cause of so much unhappiness, has increased in five years from $12 to $150 an ounce. That is "bad news" for miserable victims who think deprivation of the drug worth that death.

In the time of De Quincey, opium could be bought for a few dollars, its frightful danger unknown. Its sale unrestricted, it was so cheap that workers were able to afford beer, could find the oblivion they sought in two pennies worth of opium.

Japan informs our state department that Japanese manufacturers sending cotton rugs to the United States agree to certain limitations on shipments. The "limitations" show a substantial Japanese rug business in America—700,000 square yards of chenille rug, 3,500,000 square yards of bit-and-wool rug, 4,070,000 square yards of rugs, other than those mentioned, all these figures not including Japanese limitation oriental rugs.

We sell them the raw cotton, they sell us the manufactured article, which means selling us so many hours of Japanese labor. This country, while aiming to bring enterprise and efficiency, should endeavor to have American dollars spent for American labor. In spite of the cry, "If we don't buy from them, how can they buy from us?" More important is the question: "If we don't buy from our own working people, how are they going to live?"

ROBERT PLANK URGED BY DEMOCRATS

Denouncing the various attempts which have been made to embroil the United States in quarrels of the Old World, Representative Thomas Dorgan of Dorchester, appearing before the Resolutions Committee of the Democratic State Convention, demanded adoption of a plank against adherence to the World Court or entrance into the League of Nations.

The committee, meeting at the Hotel Brough for organization purposes and to receive resolutions, elected former Representative William A. Murray of Milford as chairman and Robert R. McCarthy of South Weymouth as secretary.

With the chairman and secretary, as members, a drafting committee of five was appointed. The five are Professor Clifford C. Hubbard of Norton, John A. Brennan of Brighton, Charles H. Morrill of Everett, William X. Watt of Lawrence and Joseph F. Dumas of Belmont. Another meeting will take place tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the same hotel.

Planks calling for action of the state governmental structure, tax revision and reduction in governmental expenditures were submitted by State Auditor Thomas H. McGlothlin of Abington.

"While I am not always in agreement with some of the resolutions of the league of nations," Huckleberry declared, "I am in accord with them in their desire to have a committee of investigation, the problem of taxation and reduction of the cost of government."

It is not a partisan question but rather one which calls for earnest consideration by the best minds of both the major parties.

RESOLUTION TEXT
The Dorgan resolution on the World Court and League of Nations.

"Resolved that it is the sense of this convention that the United States adhere to the warning sounded by George Washington, Father of the Country, in his farewell address, against the pitfalls of foreign entanglements."

Representative Dorgan condemned the works relief program of the national administration, and pleaded for a plank calling for a permanent attack with a view to placing men back in private industry. He asserted that the government cannot solve the problem in any other way and that the program would be extremely helpful if the obstacles existing to new business locating in Massachusetts were studied as well.

Among a dozen or more other planks submitted for adoption were resolutions calling for a uniform rate and state fund for automobile insurance, repeal of the proprietary convention law, and the suspension of the 6 cent law for work on the telephone installation charge, a circuit for district court judges, diversion of 60 per cent of the gasoline tax to the cities and towns for roads.

PLANKS FOR WOMEN
Charles T. Brooks, delegate from South Boston, suggested Congressman John W. McCormack for getting Washington authorities to reverse the decision of the War Relocation Authority which would have brought about the charge of some 25 workers elected as delegates.

Had the original decision been allowed to stand, he declared, there would be a time at the convention resulting in a condemnation of the New Deal policies.

Six planks submitted by the Massachusetts League of Women Voters called for inclusion of newly created administrative positions under the classified civil service; provision for compulsory retirement age for policemen and firemen; modification of the Veterans Preference Act; abolishment of the residence requirement for municipal positions under civil service; adoption of educational requirements as a prerequisite to application for positions in the official civil service and lowering of age requirements for applicants in the classified civil service.

The Young Democrats of Massachusetts endorsed the administration of President Roosevelt, recommended the one House legislature and the one House system for district court judges.

Another resolution, sponsored by John A. Brennan of Brighton, praised the administration of Governor Curley and the other Democratic state officers.

Prior to the taking up of business by the committee, the works relief program was the subject of preparing the platform was a serious one.

He declared that the candidates for state office must run on the

Split G.O.P. Ticket Is Proposed

New York, June 2.—The New York Herald-Tribune published the following editorial today:

"We believe that a plank of the party (Republican) must take place today if it is to continue to serve the nation in the spirit in which it was founded."

"The candidates named at Cleveland next week will be the candidates not only of the Republican party but of millions of Democrats who distrust the Roosevelt administration."

"We urge the convention to name their ticket and write their platform to represent this fact."

"We ask, first, that a Democrat be named for the vice-presidency."

"His nomination offers the one clear way of symbolizing to the voter what is happening."

"He should be a Democrat who has made plain his loyalty to the American system."

"He should be a national reputation and be of presidential caliber."

"With this nomination should go a pledge that the best of the country's resources of the future will be united in the coming battle."

"There is immediate political sense behind this demand. A Republican president elected this fall must serve four years with a Democratic upper house."

"The Republican convention, friendly vice-president, presiding over a Democratic Congress, could secure co-operation."

"In the present time, the country can be quickly solved. The Republican party, with its new allies, is certain to be tense and prolonged."

"The liquidation of the New Deal, in short, can be a permanent alliance of all who would democratize American."

Democratic-on-Republican Ticket Idea OK'd by Ely

Former Governor Joseph B. Ely gave his full support today to the editorial in the New York Herald-Tribune calling for the nomination of a Democratic Vice President to symbolize the united front against the present administration.

"I am heartily in favor of such a plan," said the former Governor, "and I am sure that many leading Democrats would be."

While the Republican convention professes to our idea of a fighting platform against New Deal legislation, it would not be a question of the candidate bolting the party.

"It would rather be a coalition ticket for the purpose of solidifying the party."

While declining to comment on the suggestion of his name, ex-Governor Ely was emphatic in his support of any of the others as fitting times for the nomination.

"That vote was a significant occurrence, or so I feel," he said. "We Republicans have an enormous task ahead but the very nature of the issues at stake make our success most important."

Ex-Senator Allen, who arrives in Boston today, said a message in which he pointed out that a hundred at which 2000 people sit at tables and 2500 more in the balcony "at this time of the year certainly is a very encouraging and heartening sight," according to the success of the party this year.

The former Kansas senator will be the house guest prior to the dinner of former Lieutenant Governor Gaspard D. Bacon, one of the foremost Landon supporters in this state.

N. Y. Group Strong for Landon

New York, June 2.—(US)—Strong indications today pointed to an open declaration by the New York state delegation in favor of the nomination for the presidency of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas prior to the opening of the Republican national convention in Cleveland next Tuesday.

Sentiment among the delegates is overwhelmingly favorable to Landon.

In New York, Kings, Queens, Nassau and Westchester counties surveys made by both county and district leaders had disclosed Landon a 10 to 1 favorite over any other candidate as the choice of the rank and file of the party voters.

Update Landon's strength is as marked.

The attitude of delegates and party leaders, opposing the plan of sending the delegation into the convention, unincorporated and uncommitted, was well expressed by Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, vice-chairman of the Republican state committee and a delegate-at-large, Mrs. Bacon

"Sentiment among the voters appears unanimous in favor of Gov. Landon. Knowing that too, so, how can I vote for anyone else than Gov. Landon?"

Roraback Predicts Landon Win on First

Hartford, Conn., June 2.—(INS)—The 13 Connecticut delegates to the Republican national convention, uninstructed at the state convocation, were promised today to Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas.

Before departing for Cleveland for meetings of the national committee, J. Henry Roraback, chairman of the state central committee, predicted the nomination of the Kansas on the first ballot.

He also declared James W. Wadsworth of New York would be named the running mate by acclamation.

Gloucester, June 2.—The condition of Congressman A. Platt Andrews, critically ill at his home, Eastern Point, showed no change, attendants said today. The congressman is suffering from pneumonia, which developed after an attack of influenza.

FINCHOT "CONVERSION"

SENATOR BORAH OPENS NEW PRE-CONVENTION BATTLE

By JOHN T. LAMBERT Universal Service

Washington, June 2.—Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, is striving to have himself designated an active delegate to the Republican national convention in order that he may drive home in person his powerful demands to eliminate the old guard and to secure the adoption of a progressive platform and a liberal nominee for President.

News of Borah's daring plan trickled among national Republican leaders today, sending a shiver down the spine of some and sending the others to the rule books which govern convention procedure.

Borah is going to Cleveland, arriving there probably next Sunday morning to set up presidential headquarters for himself and to confer with his campaign managers and leaders and delegates from every section of the country.

Realizing that his own candidacy has not been productive of more than 125 pledged delegates and that his own chances of nomination is past, he is anxious to impress his influence upon both the platform and the selection of the actual nominee.

Among the definite developments of national interest in the political situation today were the following:

1.—An active boom for Senator Vandenberg for vice president, in the event that Governor Landon, of Kansas, is nominated for President, spread through respectable political circles. The boom was in compliance to the senator's latest aggressive attack upon the Roosevelt policies and a recognition in some quarters that "both nominations should come from the west this year."

2.—Governor Harry W. Nice of Maryland was reported to be in a mood to declare support of Governor Landon for President.

Maryland's 14 delegates will vote for Nice for President on the first ballot and will follow his lead. He is said to be convinced that the delegates of New York and public sentiment have moved strongly toward the Kansas governor.

3.—Senator Borah is expected to prepare the formal roll of delegates, Contests from South Carolina, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana must be tried.

"I am as confident as I was in Washington," said Carl G. Bachmann of West Virginia, Borah's manager.

Senator Borah is on his way to stay; they can get him out only by defeating him.

4.—George N. Peek, one of the outstanding authorities on the operations of the Republican platform, will be invited to cooperate with former Governor Lowden, of Illinois, in drafting the agricultural-recovery plank for the Republican platform.

Peek recently separated from President Roosevelt, declaring that the operators of the "New Deal" behind the scenes are more interested in political re-election than in recovery for the farmers and workers.

5.—The organizations which call themselves "peace societies" will invade Cleveland next week with planks for American entry into the league pact and for "strengthening" the American neutrality program in consequence with League of Nations ideas.

Governor Landon, if he is nominated, will insist upon simple notification exercises to be held at the governor's mansion in Topeka. He will neither fly to the Cleveland convention nor engage "in any other theatricals," he is known to have informed his friends.

Borah in Fight to Stay, Declares His Manager

Cleveland, June 2.—(AP)—With supporters of Senator William E. Borah and Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas established in hotel headquarters here, Republican leaders met today to complete arrangements for the Republican national convention next week.

The national committee tomorrow will prepare the formal roll of delegates. Contests from South Carolina, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana must be tried.

"I am as confident as I was in Washington," said Carl G. Bachmann of West Virginia, Borah's manager.

Senator Borah is on his way to stay; they can get him out only by defeating him.

How to Look Cool!

FASHION JURY ANSWERS PROBLEM

How to look cool when the mercury visits the higher altitudes was the subject of discussion at today's Fashion Congress on the roof-garden of the Ritz-Carlton hotel.

Clothes become a real problem in the hot weather.

The proper back-drop for midday when she sips a minted beverage with THE man, as she performs "must-be-done" errands in a city which defies her to look beautiful in such heat, or when she's just plain "at home" jollin' on the porch was considered.

Costumes correct for the days that are a challenge were modeled by the Misses Betty Sengendorph, Dorothy Waters, Priscilla Bramhall and Leditia Laughlin.

The fashion jury of this week was headed by Mrs. Richard K. Thorndike, Jr., vice-president of the Vincent Club. Her personal wardrobe is one of the most fashionable of the city.

Others on the jury included Misses Constance Turner, Polly Powers, Mary Peabody, Charlotte Rantoul, Barbara Reynolds, Harriet White, Helen Mosely, Alice Merriman, and Mrs. Henry White.

Call for Cotton

Days which perforce bring out the lay stragg in 'ya and find you discovering all manner of relaxation, call for cotton frocks. "Thus cotton" was the dominant note of today's congress. For morning, afternoon and evening it was shown.

Ten of Boston's finest stores and specialty shops contributed their "fittest" ensembles for relatin' days. From these the fashion jurors selected the best and awarded them Fashion Congress tags of approval.

Data about the winning ensembles, and photographs of them will appear in the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

Cambridge Mayor Starts Housing Job

Mayor John D. Lynch of Cambridge didn't have his union card as a steam shovel operator, but they let him scoop the first big shovelful of dirt and rocks, any how, at the formal ceremonies attending the start of the $2,500,000 federal housing project in his city today.

There was quite a crowd in the cab of the big steam shovel. With the Mayor were the Rev. Augustine F. Healey, W. Warren Banech, housing administrator, John H. Corcoran of the housing board and City Councilor Hyman Dill.

Within three or four days, the mayor said, there will be from 125 to 150 men at work, and at the close of construction about 500 with a payroll of $500,000.

In his dedication, Mayor Lynch urged that the government employ Cambridge citizens, since the project will house about 200 Cambridge families.

Roxbury Store Robbed of $315

Thieves, believed to be the same who made a $1300 haul last week, less than two miles distant, stole cigars and cigarettes valued at $315 today from the tobacco shop of Benjamin Solomon, 284 Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury.

MISSING BROKER CLUE

Warrants Sent Out of Town

Police indicated today that they knew the general whereabouts of John C. Stonemetz, missing State street broker, whose deals are under probe.

A copy of the lower court warrant charging him with larceny of $2229 from a woman named Mrs. Maudie to police of a city the investigators refuse to name.

The broker, they expect, will be arrested there in a day or two.

Meanwhile, Lieutenant George V. Augusta conferred with District Attorney William J. Foley in connection with plans to seek a court order requiring John C. Stonemetz & Company to produce their books for an official audit.

The whereabouts of securities having a total value of about $75,000 is sought.

Stonemetz, once a customers man who handled the account of the late Thomas W. Lawson of "Promised Finance" fame, is specifically charged with the larceny of stocks and bonds valued at $2229 from Mrs. Hazel V. Applebaum of Lollahan road, Brighton.

Authorities continued to maintain a watch at the Stonemetz home in Englewood avenue, Brighton, and at his Point Alorton summer place. He has not been seen at either place since leaving his office on Saturday and failing to keep an appointment with a Randolph couple who expected to spend the holiday week-end with him and Mrs. Stonemetz.

KILLS 5 Timing Each DEATH

FATHER THEN SHOOT'S SELF

Dayton, O., June 2 (AP)—One by one, Walter Johnson, 42, killed five members of his family, including four of his seven children.

Five times Johnson looked at the clock, recorded death in its turn, then killed himself, authorities said today as they studied a note detailing the tragedy.

He couldn't "take" discord over his work, he wrote, and the testimony of Horace, 18, and Wilbur, 15, two of three surviving children, indicated, Corner H. W. Harris said, that the killings resulted from worry over insufficient funds to "keep the home going."

Johnson's victims were: His wife, Louella, 41; daughters, Rose Marie, 15; Elsie May, 10 and Marietta, 8, and a son, Walter, 12.

Find 5 Bodies

Meeting Horace and Wilbur with a shotgun at the door to their home late yesterday, the father shouted to them that he had "just killed your mother, your three sisters, and your brother," and asked:

"Do you want to live, or do you want to go with them?"

The pair told Corner Harris they expressed their desire to live. "You'll hear a shot," he was quoted, "then you call the police."

Summoning aid, the boys found five bodies on three beds in the single bedroom.

On one, lay the mother, who recently had been ill. She had been choked and beaten on the head, Marietta, Elsie May and Walter, their throats slashed, lay on another bed, and Rose Marie, choked to death, was on the third. Johnson's body was nearby.

Police found this note: "This family, all but two boys, is wiped out and I intend to get them and then take my own life because . . . and here Johnson asserted he could not "take" the discord that marked his work "and all the rest."

Signing it "W. F. Johnson", he added a postscript:

"Wife died at 4 a. m. Sunday."

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

Charging cruelty, Mrs. Edna M. Randall, secretary of the Woodlawn Golf Club, sought a divorce in the Salem Probate Court. But because her husband, George E. Randall, Peabody banker, left home before she made up her mind to sue for divorce, she may have to wait and sue on grounds of desertion, according to Judge Harry R. Dow, who has taken the case under advisement.

It was upped out and I intend to get them and then take my own life because . . . and here Johnson asserted he could not "take" the discord that marked his work "and all the rest."

Signing it "W. F. Johnson", he added a postscript:

"Wife died at 4 a. m. Sunday."

DELANO, Roosevelt Kin SUICIDE

UNHAPPY LOVE BLAMED

Buenos Aires, June 2 (US)—Robert B. Delano, second cousin of President Roosevelt and son of the New York railroad magnate, Lyman Delano, shot and killed himself Sunday night in despair over an unhappy love affair, dispatches from the frontier town of Resistencia stated.

Delano left two letters, one addressed to President Roosevelt and the other to a Washington society girl to whom he was formerly engaged.

Delano, 22, shot himself in the head while on duty at an electric power plant in Resistencia. He was assistant manager of the plant.

He was one of six children of Lyman Delano, brother of Mrs. James Delano Roosevelt, mother of the American President. Both letters were signed by Delano, and it was understood they had not been opened. News dispatches from Resistencia, stated, however, that in the letter addressed to his former fiancée Delano wrote he had decided to end his life because she had refused a reconciliation.

Family Silent On Death Motive

New York, June 2 (US)—Robert B. Delano was one of the six children of Lyman Delano, relative of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, whose mansion at Park avenue and 20th street is one of the show places of the exclusive Murray Hill section.

At the offices of the Atlantic Coast Line, one of the railroads of which Delano is head, it was said that word of young Delano's suicide had been received and his father had gone to his summer estate at Barrytown, Dutchess county, N. Y.

'Z-Man' Zioncheck Subdued As He Takes Mind Tests

CONGRESS
"BAD BOY"
IN HIS WORST
HORROR POSE

'SANE FRIEND' IS BARRED

Washington, June 2 (INS)—All was quiet along the Potomac today—the "Z-Man" was languishing in the psychopathic ward at Gallinger hospital for mental observation.

From Friday until yesterday noon, when he was taken into custody on a police commitment confining him to the Federal hospital for a thorough sanity test, Rep. Marlon A. Zioncheck (D., Washington state) had been "on the loose," keeping police, White House guards and U. S. district attorneys on the go.

During the night the young legislator, who only last week returned from a wild and woolly honeymoon journey with his bride, the former Ruby Nix of Texas, Tex., a Public Works Administration typist, broke into action again and had to be quieted by the armed male attendants at the hospital.

He started to voice his demands and yell about "his rights" as a lawmaker when a man who claimed he was the "Z-man's" "old college pal" attempted to see him.

He gave his name as Bill Kirkland of Alaska, and he complained to the doctors that the police were

REP. MARION ZIONCHECK
Don't Run Away, Children—It's Only Zioncheck

'Z-Man' Bride Tired of His Act, Vanishes

Texas, Ark., June 2 (AP)—Mrs. R. N. Nix, mother-in-law of Rep. Marlon A. Zioncheck, said today she did not know where her daughter was and would not tell if she did.

"Ruby is ill and very tired of all this," Mrs. Nix said. "She needs rest."

Mrs. Nix said her daughter was planning a visit here in a few days, but she did not know exactly when. She said she last heard from Mrs. Zioncheck Friday night, when the former stenographer telephoned from Washington shortly after the first arrest with Zioncheck's landlady, Mrs. Benjamin Young.

"entering into a political plot to restrain a man who is as sane as I am."

Anyway Kirkland did not get in to see Zioncheck, who had heard his voice and was demanding that he be allowed to see him. Kirkland would not force the police to take him into custody, too, and give him a sanity test at Gallinger hospital so he could be with Zioncheck.

In Harvard Hall

Zioncheck's final escapades before he was taken to the hospital included two visits to the White House office where he left empty beer bottles and a can of tin balls as a present for President Roosevelt, driving his date on the sidewalk of the Arlington hotel, near the White House, and driving through red light fights. Apparently all this was caused by his mad desire to find his bride.

She disappeared Saturday, following the minor riot in the Zioncheck apartment in exclusive Harvard Hall apartment. It was during this melee that Mrs. Benjamin Young, a writer, who owns the apartment to the Congressman, claimed she suffered an injured hip.

While believed to be trying to regain her composure with friends, Mrs. Zioncheck did not return to her husband when he was arrested Saturday night for acting disorderly. His neighbors complained that he tossed a typewriter and a suitcase containing his wife's clothes out the window. Police were forced to forcibly subdue him but he was freed later on $25 bail.

The now much-publicized "Z-man" spent Sunday recovering for his wife and started out yesterday by making his two trips to the White House and many trips to see U. S. District Attorney Leslie Garrett. She demanded warrants for Vice-President Garner "for harboring my wife" and another for Mrs. Young, whom he accused of stealing a watch. He told Garrett he believed Garner knew where his wife was hiding.

It will require another day or so before Gallinger hospital psychiatrists can complete their tests on Zioncheck's mental condition.

FEED BABY STARLING Trapped Bird Cared for by Mates

For more than a week Palmetto John McGilvray of Cambridge has watched a baby starling, trapped behind the bars of a collar window at police headquarters, being fed by four other starlings.

The baby bird is, in a pit, in which the window sits, about three feet below the sidewalk on the Western avenue side of the building.

Day by day the baby starling appears to be getting stronger.

Two days ago McGilvray saw the other birds take him in their beaks and carry him up over the sidewalk. But when they tried to make him fly he dropped to the ground, and so they deposited him in his odd nest again and have continued to feed him each morning.

Two women included Miss Zara du Pont, Miss Florence H. Lunscomb, Mrs. Maude F. Van Varenne, and Miss Martha Shufford. After picketing for more than an hour, the four left Cambridge to enter either in the front of the Boston plant of the same company on Charles street.

Pickets Joined By Miss du Pont
After a lapse of nearly a week, four women again joined 10 strikers in the picket line today in front of a furniture storage house on Green street, Cambridge.

Speed Praise Stirs Retort By Goodwin

"That's just plain crazy," was Registrar Frank A. Goodwin's comment today on the quoted statement of Dr. Miller McClintock, Harvard traffic expert, that the most dangerous speed for automobiles is between 15 and 25 miles an hour.

Dr. McClintock, at a safety conference in Philadelphia yesterday, stated that fewer than 10 per cent of accidents occur at high speed.

"I would advise motorists who read that not to take it as good advice," said Goodwin, "Professors and others of high standing coming out with statements like that have a serious effect on the good we are doing."

"I think if Dr. McClintock consults the statistics of my office he will change his opinion."

The sticker drive will continue for another 15 days, Goodwin said. He estimated that only about one in every 100 cars had not been examined and awarded the "OK" label.

Drivers of stickless cars, whose brakes are found faulty, will lose their licenses and registration for 15 days, he warned. "Three days' suspension will be the penalty for bad headlines."

Dope Seller Gets 3-Year Sentence

Frank Savastano, 42, of 94 Lyme street, Malden, who surrendered to federal narcotic agents, was sentenced to three years in penitentiary by Judge Hugh D. McElwain in United States court today.

Savastano pleaded guilty of conspiracy to sell narcotics in violation of the Harrison act.

The case against Mrs. Savastano and four others is still pending.

DIVORCE ACTION BASED ON BOOK

Columbus, O., June 2—Unpublished "Redded Pine" is a novel comparable to "Gypsy" in the field of literature, according to the Radcliffe graduate who wrote it.

But in the Harvard-trained mind of her socially prominent husband it is a stand-out in the field of biography starkly realistic enough to entitle him to a divorce.

While courtroom spectators edge forward on their seats, excerpts from the writings of Mrs. Constance Hill are being read by lawyers for Frederick B. Hill, a wealthy manufacturer. His parents live in Wellesley.

Notes for the novel introduced into evidence, referred to a first post-marriage lover as inspiring fear, to a second as teaching fearlessness and to a third as embodying perfection.

"Aren't they Dr. Palmer L. Codray, the late Joseph R. Hague and Thomas H. Uzzell, New York literary critic?" demanded a lawyer representing the writer's husband.

"They are not," snapped back Mrs. Hill.

Turning to excerpts from the manuscript itself, said to be now in the hands of a New York publisher, the lawyer read a series of episodes which concluded:

"At last I have the perfect lover. He is not a Canadian, a Don Juan, but a perfectly normal man; mature, not violent, but assured. He is adequate and hard and strong, yet quite gentle."

"There have been other men of course, else how should I understand the difference? I resent their love-making now. I never did before as I passed from one to the other."

Dedham Socialites Re-Enact Pageant Of Puritan Days

By BETTY ALDEN

THINGS ARE pretty soft for the Pilgrims nowadays... Where once the "breaking waves dashed high on a stern and rockbound shore" and red-skinned savages skulked in every thicket, a strong modern wharf now projects out into the more quiet waters of the harbor, and thousands of heavy villagers gather on the shore to extend a friendly hand of welcome...

At least that's the way it was for the Pilgrims who landed at the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Jessup Stimson in Dedham yesterday afternoon, to re-enact, as a part of Dedham's Tercentenary celebration, the arrival of their forefathers at that very spot on the shores of the Charles River...

Of course the Indians were there to provide a hostile atmosphere for the rugged pioneers, but their warfare was not fearsome enough to frighten away the rugged Puritan who stood on one side of the battleground making 15 minutes' morning pictures.

Still other picturesque parts of the program included the May Pole dance a la 1636, with the irate Puritan sheriff breaking up the merriment because of its frivolous import... and the punishment of the fortune teller who was believed to have supernatural powers...

The old remedy of the ducking stool may have been good for women in Colonial days but it wouldn't make any headway at all with the modern athletic miss... as Mrs. Philip R. Sherwood quite graphically demonstrated.

In the pageant yesterday she played the part of the fortune teller... After her inquisitors had strapped her into the ducking stool, suspended on a long pole, she allowed herself to be "dunked"—just once... but when they tried to immerse her the second time she exerted her femininity, broke the rope, hopped off the stool and swam calmly to shore...

All in all the whole affair, a preliminary to Dedham's formal Tercentenary celebration in the late summer, was very picturesque... The Stimsons' green rolling lawn on the river's edge provided a very appropriate as well as advantageous setting for the pageant and even the host and hostess were dressed in colorful Colonial costumes... Mrs. Stimson picked from the Puritan wardrobe a gown of royal blue cotton with an undershirt of primrose yellow and a white lawn cap and kerchief... while her husband was far from sombre in his deep blue velvet breeches and coat, and tall square crowned hat...

Lawn Party Attracts Many

SEVERAL HUNDRED of Dedham's villagers turned out for the lawn party and pageant... with the children, especially, delighting in the illustrations of stories in their history books...

Mrs. Frederick Page Royce, one of the Puritan ladies interested in selling choice and sweet smelling herbs, guided her grandchildren about the lawns... they were with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frank Royce, and two of her married daughters, Mrs. Philip Theophilus and Mrs. Frank Hill...

Mrs. Philip Hale's colorful present day outfit attracted almost as much admiration as the bright green Puritan robe of Mrs. Charles Ridgely, Mrs. Stimson's daughter... Mrs. Hale combined a white dress with a scarlet flannel jacket and a scarlet scarf on her rough straw sailor...

Miss Mary Snelling wore a black and white print, for strolling about on the lawns, while Isabel Russell, one of society's young artists of note, wore a real garden party outfit of a flowered chiffon with a large floppy hat... Mrs. P. Murray Forbes, Sr., was gowned in navy blue with wide cuffs of embroidered batiste and little bands of pleated ribbon on her navy straw... Still others noted wandering about were Mrs. Albert Nickerson, one of Dedham's very prominent residents in two shades of copper tan boucle... Mrs. Constance Hutchins in pink linen, succumbing to the blandishments of the "wicked" fortune teller... Mrs. Jeffrey de H. Bell, Mrs. Winthrop Ames, Mrs. Harry Conant and Mrs. Roger Conant, Rosine Sherwood with her younger brother and sister, Mrs. James Halsey, with her two little youngsters, Miss Harriet Brewster, Mrs. Eldon McLeod, Mrs. Whitfield Painter, and Mrs. Walter Hodgdon...

First-Nighters Turn Out in Force

THE USUAL THEATER GUILD first nighters arrived at the Shubert Theater last evening, a little bit dubious as to what to expect... For they were to witness the opening of "Pacelli," the play based on the experiences of the famous Irish political leader... and so many historical plays turn out to be pretty dry and unnatural...

But almost as soon as the first scene got under way they realized they were seeing a living dramatic picture of the private life of the Irish leader... a play crammed with emotion and beauty from beginning to end, with Dennis King and Edith Barrett so well cast as the principals in the human and beautiful love story...

As the lights dimmed before the first curtain we glimpsed in the packed house such regular first nighters as Mr. and Mrs. Charles Toppin, Phyllis Motley with an escort, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Daley, Lavinia Sabine and Rebekah Hobbs with Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs, Mrs. Alvin T. Fuller, Mrs. John G. Falfrey, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hastings, Mrs. James Phelan with her daughters, Virginia and Priscilla, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmon Brewer, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Gavin and Mrs. George Dunkle...

Bridge Luck or Skill

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

"My goodness," said a spectator, "that was a lucky finesse!" The expert who had played the hand smiled graciously and said nothing but his discomfited opponents knew very well that luck hadn't entered into the matter.

When the crucial moment had arrived, declarer had reconstructed the hands from the bidding and from the play up to that point.

Then everything was clear to him, even though it looked like guesswork to the spectators who had watched it all.

Why, indeed?

Exquisite Sheer and Jaunty Print Win Congress

THERE'S SOMETHING poetic about this Fashion Congress choice—with its dim black sheer, its exquisite tracery of scallops like little wavelets, and water lilies tucked in the belt. And the huge black leghorn hat will make a cool and still shadow for your eyes.

It is modeled by Miss Isabelle Gardiner, and is a Fashion Congress suggestion for important Pops nights, or for an afternoon in June when big things are under way. Lattice-toe doekins pumps pick up the dressy mood nicely.

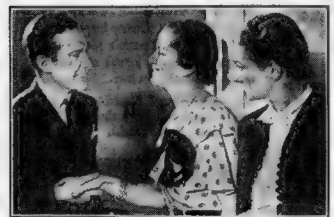

Right, the mood changes and we have a brisk young print-and-plain suit which goes with verve to the wedding of its owner's best friend. Or it comes in town for shopping and tea on a high roof or a low sidewalk...

It's chic and just too feminine and becoming—from its white and navy daisies regimented on a slaty blue ground, to the slim little frock beneath, a palest grey chalk-sheer trimmed with sawtooth edging on collar, cuffs and pockets. Notice the tall but slim front details of the printed coat. The huge navy baku hat has one of the new mother-of-pearl ribbon daisies, whose grey lights pick up the coolth of grey in the costume. Miss Alice Scotland models.

Improve Your Personality

"NOT a bit alike, those two sisters! Why such a difference in personality?"

That's what everyone says about aperting, well-poised Rita and timid, silent Bevie. Everyone has forgotten that only a few years ago they were both shy, uninteresting girls!

But one day Rita learned of the magic of modern psychology. She found out that personality can be changed.

With spark that did her credit, she fought down that strange sense of inferiority. Inferior because of poor education? Rita went to evening schools. She didn't dress well, dance well, do her hair becomingly? She studied out these defects.

By that time who no longer was afraid to talk to people. She found out that they were shy, too, and welcomed friendly advances from others.

By voice, words, manner, Rita learned to shed warmth and ease about her. Beatie... well, she just wouldn't try! Preferred to think her life was spoiled by an unlucky childhood.

So now Rita welcomes life with the grace of self-assurance. While Bevie is still "Hattie Handicap."

Our 4-page booklet, IMPROVING YOUR PERSONALITY, gives you just the tips you need in resouling your life from the burden of an undeveloped personality. You, too, have the traits, natural charm. Bring these to the surface in the modern, scientific way.

When I Loved You

By Hazel Livingston

CHAPTER FIVE

They stood, all of them, watching her bustle around the kitchen, quick as a girl on her neat little feet.

"How've you changed," Evelyn said bitterly. "My own mother. Well, if that's how you feel, all right. But it's going to be hard on the girls, that's all. Peter Failey's grandchildren growing up in a tumble-down shack on the edge of Russian Hill. He'd care—even if you don't!"

Peter Failey's widow put down the lettuce she was washing at the sink. "Evelyn! You don't mean that!"

"Don't mean it? What do you think I'm doing, making believe?"

"But you—you can go back to Tom! You'll have to. Oh, believe me, dear, it's the only way. Put your little pride in your pocket. What's a quarter? Stay a little while, stay as long as you can put up with the little flat, but, darling, tell Tom you'll go back. It's the only way. You see yourself it's the only way."

"But I can't go back! I've left Tom for good and all and he wouldn't take me back now. If I'd go, which I won't, I'm going to get a divorce. Peter will have to come off his high horse with me. He'll lose everything—his house, his car, his job, his friends. He'll be a pauper!"

"You won't listen. I'm going to make Peter listen to me. Maybe he can't pull the wool over your eyes and Edith always was a fool. And Francesca, married to half the wealth in the Philippines, doesn't care—but I do! I'll show him!"

"Evelyn—please! Darling, please listen!"

"I won't listen. I'm going to make Peter listen to me. Maybe he can't pull the wool over your eyes and Edith always was a fool. And Francesca, married to half the wealth in the Philippines, doesn't care—but I do! I'll show him!"

They Quarrel

She pulled off her hat, ruffled up her hair with the other hand. "NOW! I'll get dinner. You sit down and eat, mama. You're tired. You can't expect to dash around at your age! Really, you look ill! This is going to be fun—I love to cook!"

"Oh, poor Jan, what a mother!" Looking like a plucked chicken. "And Dorathia too! Never mind, either of you. Just leave everything to me. I'll fix things—and I know we'll help me. You leave everything to me!"

But the longest night comes to an end at last. The fog lifted, the whistles ceased.

So Evelyn was up at 7 and promptly the whole house was awake.

How could they all live together in this shabby little place, packed tight as sardines in a can?

"I'll Show Him!"

"She looked around the square little 'cruet room' with its blue-striped white paint, its green striped paper, the curtains and bedspread her mother had made by hand. The kind of room you see pictured in some of the women's magazines.

"A guest room in your attic. Paint and paper the walls your self."

Married Comrades

By Adele Garrison

CHAPTER 24

FOR A fraction of a second not one of the group at the open nursery door moved or uttered a sound.

It was as if we were all struck dumb and motionless by the grotesque sight of our adored Baby Faith dashed from head to feet with molasses and trying to pick chicken feathers from her tiny sticky hands as she howled woevornously.

Katherine and I had known from the quality of the wails which had floated out to us on our way down the corridor that anger was the only thing which aided our cherubic infant. Her "mad cry," as well known to every nurse and mother, held no trace of physical injury, and despite her horrible appearance, I guessed that Mother Graham, Dicky, Mary and Noel shared our realization.

The next instant we all moved toward the screaming child. Katherine was the first to reach her, and catching her up on her shoulders she began to rock the baby in the time-honored way which even the sturdiest of professional nurses sometimes employ, and Katherine is by no means "starchy."

"Whatever happened to Aunt Mother's beautiful baby?" she murmured. "There, there, darling, will have the nasty old stuff off in a minute!"

She turned toward the bathroom, throwing reassurance over her shoulder as she went.

"I'll have her back looking like a Danish cherub in a jiffy. Pink chairs, everbody, and wait for her little molasses. And please postpone the enemas, firing squad until I get back at least. There may be some kind of explanation, you know."

We did not wait to look for interpretation of her meaning. With chiefly faces and hostile eyes, Junior and Rodolphe holding each other's hands as if for mutual protection, and huddled against the farthest wall of the nursery refectory in open fear, a curious mist of horrified guilt and utter bewilderment.

THE GUILTY ONES

Mother Graham, who a rather just a few rational wires, her youngest grandchild is concerned, wheeled on her two cunning granddaughters and pointed a menacing finger at them.

"It's you two young rascals!" she said in a high, shrill voice. "I know it! It's the look on your faces. Aren't you ashamed of yourselves for letting a poor, innocent little baby be that way?"

Both ought to have a good whipping, and if your father doesn't give it to you I will!

How from the box interrupted her. And, knowing familiar with their mental processes would have thought that their attention was caused by anticipation of a spanking.

His Dicky and I knew better. In the first place, he never has punished either child, having the discipline to me in the second, we have taught them both to be afraid of us, and to understand our attitude against their younger and decidedly different standpoint.

THE FIRING SQUAD

But Dicky betrayed no unheatedness as he faced the culprit, whose agonized query, "Oh, Mama, she isn't hurt, is she?" still floated unwarmed in the quiet of the room.

"Come here, you two!" he ordered and no one who did not know every inflection of his voice as I do would have surmised he was inwardly shaking with anger.

The two small boys shot wary, furtive glances at each other, and then advanced toward him with the slow steps of persons going to execution. When they were within a foot of him, Dicky spoke again.

"Are you two responsible for the state in which we found the baby?" he demanded, then, reluctantly answered the terror in their eyes before he went any farther.

"No, she's not hurt," he said, "nothing that soap and water can't fix. But..."

"Oh! Gee!" The ludicrous, repressed exclamation came from their throats, and they squared their shoulders, as if welcoming any punishment which might be meted out to them, now that their fear of having injured their child was relieved.

Dicky abruptly changed his personality to words more suited to their understanding.

"Look here!" he said, "did you pull that molasses out of the chicken feathers on the baby?"

5 YEARS PERFORMANCE PROTECTION

Originated by General Electric

The General Electric THRIFT UNIT was the first refrigerator mechanism to carry a 2 year guarantee, first to give a 3 year guarantee, first with a 4 year service plan and first to carry 5 years performance protection.

Consider these simple facts: the first hermetically sealed refrigerator mechanism was developed and introduced by General Electric in 1927. It revolutionized refrigeration costs. Others have followed, but the record of the General Electric sealed-in-steel THRIFT UNIT for dependable performance at lowest cost has never been approached by any other cold-making unit ever invented.

Basically unchanged but constantly improved, the famous G-E sealed-in-steel THRIFT UNIT now produces double the cold with even less current than ever before.

Because of the unparalleled record of the G-E THRIFT UNIT for dependability and economy, and because of its great public acceptance, other manufacturers have attempted to imitate this matchless sealed-in-steel mechanism. Each year more and more are turning to this type and eventually all electric refrigerators will undoubtedly follow G-E's lead.

To protect your investment make sure the refrigerator you buy today has a sealed mechanism that has been proved by experience. After all, display room demonstrations don't mean so much—it's the kitchen test that counts. Thrifty buyers recognize General Electric's nine years of proof through actual use make the G-E today's best buy.

Choose a General Electric and you can be sure you have the thriftiest refrigerator in the world.

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

The Crazy Guest!

Midnight and a Wife Killer
As a Visitor

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

The mantle of Distinguished Adventurer falls today about the shoulders of Mr. Dratin Jones, Lake Telmark, Hibernia, N. J., and you'll all agree she deserves it.

The scene is at Mrs. Jones' former home in Arlington, N. J. The hour is midnight and she is alone in the house. The doorbell rings and Mrs. Jones' twenty minutes of terror is about to start.

Mrs. Jones was waiting for that ring. She expected her husband and was making some coffee for him, but when she opened the door, a stranger stood before her. The smile of greeting left her face as she saw a huge man with bloodshot eyes and tear-stained cheeks, standing on the doorstep, wringing his powerful hands and crying convulsively.

She was about to leave the door when sympathy for the man made her hesitate.

"They've murdered my wife, lady," he sobbed, "please save me."

The man seemed so honest and so frightened that Mrs. Jones, without thinking, let him in. She had heard of riots and not being in sympathy with such measures decided it would be the right thing to protect the poor man. Besides, she reasoned, as she led him to the kitchen, her husband would soon be home.

Once in the kitchen, Mrs. Jones says, the man did not seem to be in a hurry to hide. He dropped into a chair and fidgeted with his hattered hat.

"Are you sure your wife is dead?" Mrs. Jones asked her strange visitor.

"Oh, yes," he mumbled, "they were all around her. I saw them in front of the house when I passed in the trolley car. So I came here. I heard someone say they cut her throat with a knife."

"Who? Who did you hear say that?" Mrs. Jones asked. The man's eyes rolled and he glanced nervously from side to side. Then, Mrs. Jones says, he seemed to shrivel into his clothes from terror. She could almost see his kinky hair bristling as he leaned toward her and whispered one blood-curdling word.

"GHOSTS," was all he said.

But it was enough for Mrs. Jones. Her own flesh started to creep as she realized that she had to do with a crazy man. The wild eyes now told her everything. The man was a dangerous psychopathic case. And she was alone with him!

If only her husband would come home, the frantic woman thought. She looked hopefully, but the house was as silent as the grave. Frantically as she was, though, her mind worked as it often does in a dangerous crisis. She decided to humor the man and try to get him to leave the house.

But as she turned to say something trivial, the man's eyes seemed to almost start out of their sockets and he pointed, with a shaking finger, at the window.

"Three they are," he screamed, "coming after me, look!"

Mrs. Jones says she almost expected to see a ghost as he pointed, but she saw the reflection in the glass of the window. Her heart was pounding as she tried to keep calm. Instantly, they say, is conclusive. Mrs. Jones believes it. She says she could almost feel her own mind cracking under the strain.

She held her nerve together with difficulty and spared no time.

"They can't hurt you," she said amiably.

But the smile came off her face when the man's eyes turned on HER with that same terrorizing stare. He seemed to be studying her, but only to deliver his next blow. Mrs. Jones' voice died in her throat at the man's next move.

He slowly put his hand under his coat and drew out a long knife.

"You're a ghost, too," he said, "but I'll get you. I'll get all of them."

Well, sir, I wouldn't have been in Mrs. Jones' boots at that minute for all the tea in China. You can imagine the terror that must have gripped her. She says she could hear her heart beat plenty but she made up her mind that she wasn't going to let the man know it.

So she pretended that she didn't even see the knife and that she had nothing to fear. The smile came back over her pale features. She says she couldn't believe it was her voice speaking. It sounded too calm for her agitated nerve.

"You poor man," she said, "I'm going to save you. I know a place where ghosts can't get at you. You can sleep there too, and be perfectly safe."

Mrs. Jones says that for a moment she didn't know whether or not the man was listening. From his blank expression she couldn't tell if he was about to plunge the knife into her or not. Then a hunted look came over his face.

"Where?" he asked.

Mrs. Jones talked fast and confidentially.

"In jail, behind the nice strong bars," she said, "I know the chief of police and he will let you go three tonight so that the ghosts won't get you. I'll telephone him to send over a couple of men to protect you."

Mrs. Jones says her knees were shaking, but she walked as steadily as she could right past the man to the phone. He let her go, saying after her dumbly, but stood by her side. She got the number of the chief of police and told him she was.

"A gentleman friend is here," she said, "who is bothered by ghosts. He has a knife in his hand but he is afraid to stay with me. Please let him sleep in your jail as he is afraid to stay with me because I am alone. Hurry please, he is tired."

The policeman who answered him didn't understand, but his remarks gave Mrs. Jones another bit of information.

"That's a dangerous lunatic," he said, "he just murdered his wife. We'll be right over. Hold him." Then the policeman hung up.

Hold him! Mrs. Jones smiled grimly.

Mrs. Jones says she never thought a police patrol wagon could sound so good as it did driving up to her door. The police came in and the man was taken away as much as a lamb. All he wanted was to get away from that ugly ghost.

And Mrs. Jones says, she DID look like a ghost by that time. And I don't wonder. The next day I think I would have been one. There are no ghosts in tomorrow's story, boys and girls, but Mabel Schaefermann will be with us to end the dramatic story of the man who called to confuse a murder.

Bring Back Prosperity, Buy American

ONE of the gravest results of the Administration's Free-Trade policy, antithetical to all our traditions, is the DUMPING ON OUR SHORES OF CHEAP JAPANESE GOODS.

Since 1932 our cotton imports from Japan have multiplied FIVE HUNDRED TIMES.

This has forced a crisis in our textile industry—so grave, in fact, that President Roosevelt was compelled to recognize it by raising the tariff 46 per cent on certain kinds of Japanese cloths.

"Reciprocal trade treaties," with their free-trade "most-favored nation" clause, are destined, in the long run, to work our industrial undoing.

This country's wealth and greatness were built on the protective tariff policy, a like that has stood between the American workman and the American manufacturer and the PAUPER WAGE-LEVELS OF EUROPE.

The series of articles now appearing in the Hearst papers show plainly the demoralizing effects upon our industries and our labor of foreign dumping in the home market.

Our protective tariff policy was based on BUY AMERICAN.

Prosperity will return and most of our unemployed will go to work from the day America makes up its mind to BUY AMERICAN and vote down all the free-trade doctrines that pop up from time to time under fancy names—just now naming under the pretty name of "reciprocal trade agreements."

Another Foreign Visitor

EUROPE continues to bombard us with everything EXCEPT CHECKS.

It sends us Archbishops and M. P.'s who tell us what a blasted shyme it is that we do not join England in her odorous league for controlling the Mediterranean and squelching Italy and the Arabs.

Europe sends us Socialists, Communists and Anarchists to tell us our form of government is out-moded, while the factories of the Continent and Asia dump on our shores their shoddy goods manufactured at pauper wage-scale levels.

It sends us beautiful big boats, colossal dirigibles and Stanley Baldwin's curses on our obstinacy. EVERYTHING EXCEPT a few checks for the $12,000,000,000 she still owes Uncle Sam for that little transaction during the war and for some years afterward, when we pulled her out of her cesspool.

Now comes to our shore a French general, all be-medalled and full of politesse—but NO CHECK.

His name is Poudourex. He represents the Universal Peace Conference.

No sooner had Poudourex landed than he announced that "THE UNITED STATES SHOULD JOIN THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS."

After he gets warmed up on several lectures he will no doubt invite us to join the Franco-Russian alliance.

Major-General Poudourex, like all the European barkers, who infest our shores, will take away some good American dollars and leave us a heap of words.

AND THE VERY MEDALS HE WEARS WERE PROBABLY PAID OUT OF MONEY BORROWED HERE.

So Crime Pays—Does It?

Yes! What has it brought you? Exactly nothing. No one ever notices you. Nothing exciting ever happens to you. You're just a number in a telephone book. And you're bitter. Envious of the luckier people who have more money. Why can't you be rich?

But have you ever tried to register yourself? You complain that others don't notice you, but have you ever noticed yourself? Ever tried to honestly express yourself?

Because we DON'T TRY TO PUT OURSELVES ACROSS. Instead, we put all our bets on a synthetic copy of someone or something which hasn't the slightest relationship to our own person or character.

Why don't we put ourselves across?

Because we're afraid to be a Bird of our own REALITY is worth a plain brown Sparrow—so most of us are afraid to be a plain brown Sparrow. Listen, World!

Why you write—should life be such a washout? No, you're not starving. You've a job, a home, a family and friends. You get a few pleasures, see a few things. But you're all so unsatisfactory. Empty as a telephone book. You never wanted life to be like this, did you? And you're sure it isn't your fault that it is as you've always done your best to make your life interesting. Followed all the tips to success. Worn the clothes that Those Who Know said you should wear. Paid attention to the things that were smart to say and do. Made the right gestures. Admired the right people.

Yet what has it brought you? Exactly nothing. No one ever notices you. Nothing exciting ever happens to you. You're just a number in a telephone book. And you're bitter. Envious of the luckier people who have more money. Why can't you be rich?

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROPHONE NEWS

The one-time King of Kings is an exile in England. Very little of his life is known to his subjects. For his father, King Menelik II, was exiled in Egypt for violation of customs.

The descendant of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, may spend the rest of his life as an exile in England. He had the forethought to get away from Ethiopia with his family.

Edwin C. Hill has been in Ethiopia for some time. He has seen the King of Kings and the Queen of Sheba. He has seen the King of Kings and the Queen of Sheba. He has seen the King of Kings and the Queen of Sheba.

Taxing the Family Dollar

Where the Money Goes

The enormously expanding cost of government is defrayed in large measure by indirect and invisible taxes, which fall upon the consumer without his knowledge in the small income groups.

These whose incomes are moderate or low have been accustomed to believe that the portion of the national income that they pay in taxes on the prosperous and wealthy is small.

The dangerous fallacy of this belief is clearly exposed in the current survey of the Government's Treasury Commission of New York.

A typical family of four persons with an annual income of $2,000 pays no federal or state income taxes. The national income tax is paid by the family in the form of a flat or home income tax, which charges for the taxes which the family pays.

In addition to these indirect taxes which are payable by the family in the form of a flat or home income tax, which charges for the taxes which the family pays.

The Treasury Commission of New York has found that the annual aggregate tax burden on corporations is more than $2,000 million, a large part of which is also passed on to consumers in the price of goods.
